

Anthony Geraghty is Professor of the History of Art at the University of York,UK, and Chairman of the Society of Architectural Historians of Great Britain. He has published books and articles on Sir Christopher Wren and the English Baroque.

His talk will consider the design of Castle Howard, the spectacular country house that was begun to the designs of Sir John Vanbrugh and Nicholas Hawksmoor in 1699. The talk will consider the nature and purpose of architectural ornament in the English Baroque period.